Come Help Plant a Rain Garden!!

(Edmonds - WA) The rainy season is coming fast, and now is the perfect time to learn about rain gardens, while lending a hand in your community. A rain garden is a beautiful landscape feature that allows you to control drainage safely while also providing protection to our local creeks, lakes and Puget Sound from polluted runoff.

The City of Edmonds, in partnership with WSU Master Gardeners and Snohomish Conservation District, is building a neighborhood cluster of 6 rain gardens to help address stormwater runoff in our city. Please stop by 8324 Sierra Drive, Edmonds, on Saturday, October 10th, from 10 am to 12:30 pm, to help plant the rain gardens and to learn how rain gardens work. This event is free, and coffee and refreshments will be provided. For more information, call Kate Riley, Snohomish Conservation District, at 425.377.7004.
